

I understand that FM translators may be lost. I am not sure exactly what all of this means, but I have been informed that it will mean that I will no longer receive a signal which I listen to every morning and afternoon, K-LOVE.

I feel that K-LOVE provides a positive service to the community by playing positive music and allowing it's listeners to call in if they need encouragement through prayer or have had their prayers answered. I have choices that I can make, such as listening to a CD instead. However, a CD has nowhere near the positive impact that this radio station provides.

The loss of K-LOVE would leave an enormous hole that used to provide me with a positive feeling before and after work. Instead, this hole would be replaced by DJ's who don't care and a company that is interested in only making money.

This radio station is not about making money. It's about touching peoples lives in a positive way that would allow them to touch other peoples lives in a positive manner. Then don't you think we actually need more stations like KLOVE rather than less?
